DETAILED ACTION

Claims 34-35 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 34-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

There are many factors to be considered when determining whether there is sufficient evidence to support a determination that a disclosure does not satisfy the enablement requirement and whether any necessary experimentation is "undue". These factors include 1) the breadth of the claims, 2) the nature of the invention, 3) the state of the prior art, 4) the level of one of ordinary skill, 5) the level of predictability in the art, 6) the amount of direction provided by the inventor, 7) the existence of working examples, and 8) the quantity of experimentation needed to make or use the invention based on the content of the disclosure. In re Wands, 858 F.2d 731, 737, 8 USPQ2d 1400, 1404 (Fed. Cir. 1988).

The nature of the invention: The nature of the invention is a composition containing halichondrin B derivative plus and additional ingredient ultimately used to treat cancer. See claims; specification at page 2.

The state of the prior art and predictability: The state of the prior art is that it involves screening in vitro and in vivo to determine which compounds exhibit the desired pharmacological activities (i.e. what compounds can treat which specific disease). There is no absolute predictability even in view of the seemingly high level of skill in the art. It is noted that the pharmaceutical art is unpredictable, requiring each embodiment to be individually assessed for physiological activity. In re Fisher, 427 F. 2d 833, 166 USPQ 18 (CCPA 1970) indicates that the more unpredictable an area is, the more specific enablement is necessary in order to satisfy the statute. In the instant case, the instantly claimed invention is highly unpredictable since one skilled in the art would recognize the difficulty in finding compositions effective in treating any form of cancer. Applicants' are invited to come in with a declaration utilizing the claimed compounds showing positive treatment for any form of cancer.

Guidance and working examples: The specification teaches the halicondrin B derivative combinable with other ingredients. No test data indicating the effectiveness of the composition is disclosed. It is noted that the ingredient/compound named to be combined with halicondrin B derivative are really classes of compounds. One of ordinary skill in the art would have to pick and choose a specific compound from among the class of compounds, combine them with halichondrin B derivative and then determine if said composition has anticancer activity. The skilled artisan would also need to determine the ratio of each compound in the combination. Applicants have not provided ratios, dosages, modes of administration for all such combinations. Where is the direction and guidance? The classes of compounds encompass all compounds presently known and yet to be discovered for each class and is wholly inoperable. Applicants' have not have enabled such future possibilities and cannot have protection for such. Further, the skilled artisan would have to determine if the composition retains the 'anticancer' activity that the halichondrin B derivative has alone.

The specification fails to provide sufficient support of the use of the compositions of claims 34/35. Therefore, in view of the Wands factors and In re Fisher (CCPA 1970) discussed above, to practice the claimed invention herein, one of ordinary skill in the art would have to engage in undue experimentation to test which cancer can be treated by the compositions of the instant claims, with no assurance of success.

This rejection can be overcome by deleting the claims.
